

Introduction

The Jubilee Range of buildings

A collection of buildings large and small were added to the range last year to compliment any garden railway setting.

Most date from the Edwardian period or earlier and are built to denote a time when coal was king and Britannia ruled the waves. Everyday buildings were built for function and to fit into their vernacular environments. All chimneys are now available to smoke, creating additional charm and character.

Chimney pots on a Celtic cottage.

The village green.

The new Celtic range draw their character from the Celtic fringe, The Highlands, Islands, the Lakes, Wales, Cornwall, Ireland and the Isle of Man.

All measurements are approximate in inches.

All buildings are one off models.

All buildings can be painted to your own colour scheme.

Please enjoy browsing through the catalogue pictures; any further information can be gained either by phone call or email.